LUGANA DOC

MARCHESE DEL SETTE LINE

This white wine is produced between Veneto and Lombardy, precisely in the provinces of Verona and Brescia, and takes its name from the village of Lugana, a small hamlet in the municipality of Sirmione, south of Lake Garda.

This is the area that has always had a vocation for vine-growing, a wide area of fertile plains whose particular soil, together with the breezes of Lake Garda, now makes it possible to produce a wine with a rich aroma and a unique taste.

The history of Lugana is long and rich with evidence. Its tradition seems to have its roots in the times of the Roman Empire, and it is said that the famous Roman poet Valerio Catullo celebrated its virtues, appreciating its taste and bouquet.

The tradition of this wine can be found in a considerable number of historical and literary references, such as the one relating to the "beautiful grapes" that Isabella d'Este Gonzaga tasted in Sirmione during her journey to Lake Garda.
